ESSAY
Nannette McLain, a charter faculty member of the University of Central Florida, believed that teachers are professional people who must model good learning for their students; must know and understand their students; must set appropriate standards for achievement and help students meet those standards; should be student friendly and respectful of students; should demonstrate that learning can and should be fun; that teachers deserve respect; and that teachers need to be continuous learners if they expect to be good teachers. Applicants will submit an essay of no more than 1,200 words that demonstrates an understanding of the beliefs held by Nannette McLain with regard to teachers and teaching and which addresses the following.

• Why is teaching your career goal?
• What experiences in your life motivated you to become a secondary teacher?
• Describe your long-term commitment to the classroom.
