The Galileo School for Gifted Learning

The Galileo School for Gifted Learning is a high-performing public charter school in Seminole County that exists to provide a developmentally and academically appropriate environment for gifted and talented children and those who want to learn in a gifted learning environment. We are committed to innovative, research-based educational practices that nurture and challenge students, while respecting their voices and providing them with choices in their learning. We facilitate children’s development by systematically assessing their strengths in a wide range of domains so that we can provide ascending levels of challenge to ensure that students are working in their zone of optimal development. We are an inclusive community that actively seeks to admit students from underrepresented and at-risk populations. Our ultimate goal is to prepare our learners to make powerful contributions to the well-being of the global community.
