Service-Learning Contract EDF 4603: Analysis and Application of Ethical, Legal and Safety Issues in Schools

UCF Student’s name: ____________________________________________________________

EDF 4603 Section number: ____________________________________________________

Students will participate in providing service through established social agencies which meet the needs of the community to bind the activity and the course content together. Service completed as community involvement in the form of volunteerism at homeless shelters, soup kitchens, or food pantries are prime examples of such entities. The UCF student may be involved in direct or indirect volunteer activities, however s/he must be active, not merely observing, and s/he needs to be meeting a need in your organization.

In terms of the course, the volunteerism supports many of the course objectives such as: identifying the effects of philosophy, politics, religion, and socio-economic issues on school organization, curriculum, and instruction (FAP 9, 10); evaluation of various sociological factors in modern society and their influence on school policies (FAP 11), learn how schools and society respond to social issues that place children at risk (FET 4.1, 4.2, 4.3, 4.4), and recognize the differences and similarities among cultural groups in the United States and be able to identify the impediments to successful educational experiences for LEP students (FPS: ESOL 2, 3, 23).

The intent is that the service-learning experience will serve several community needs. First, the UCF student will aid your organization in support of community enrichment. Secondly, the UCF student will assist you as an extra pair of hands in meeting the interest of your agency. Finally, the UCF student will experience the multiplicity of the community and the realities of society and consequently make decisions about entering the education profession based on that enlightenment.
